

Help us celebrate 50 years of American environmentalism!

- WHAT: Our Annual Open House with FREE catered food, Oakshire beer, door prizes & music
- WHEN: Wednesday, December 12th, 2012 | (5–8 pm)
- WHERE: 1192 Lawrence St. in Eugene (corner of 12th & Lawrence)

In honor of the 50th Anniversary of the landmark book, “Silent Spring” by Rachel Carson, Beyond Toxics has organized an open house on Wednesday, Dec. 12th.

Beyond Toxics has been a leading voice for environmental justice and a clean and just Oregon for twelve years. We're proud to follow in the footsteps of Rachel Carson, the premier environmental pioneer and pesticide critic of her generation, to continue raising awareness about the persistent dangers of pesticides. As part of that legacy, we're introducing reform legislation in the new 2013 state session to protect Oregonians from the overuse of pesticides by our government.

Come learn more about our “Safe Public Places” project to protect you and your family from pesticides. We will also preview two new videos made for Beyond Toxics: one about our environmental justice program and another about the shocking dousing of a small town in Eastern Oregon with a deadly pesticide.

No RSVP necessary. Just come see us and enjoy!
