

HERBICIDES AND HEALTH OCT. 24-25

Eugene, OR
Triangle Lake, OR

Samuel Moore

What are the physical and social effects of herbicide exposure on Oregon communities? Featuring nationally-recognized scholars and organized with local N.G.O. Beyond Toxics, our goal is to explore sites of collaboration and tension between research, activism, and governance.

Friday, October 24

3:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

“Nature in Doubt: Intersex in a Chemical Era”

Panel: Elizabeth Reis and Tyrone Hayes

Respondent: Kari Noorgard, UO Sociology

Clinical Services 250

7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

“From Silent Spring to Silent Night: Of Toads and Men”

Environmental Studies Convocation

Keynote Address: Tyrone Hayes

182 Lillis, doors open at 6:30

Saturday, October 25

9:00 a.m - 4:00 p.m.

Witness to Action Assembly

Community members, environmental justice advocates, scholars, students, scientists and officials will travel with Tyrone Hayes by bus to Triangle Lake to learn about herbicide exposure from the ground up, draft a Statement of Principles and explore our capacity for social change.

Triangle Lake, Oregon

To reserve bus transport and lunch please visit:

<http://www.beyondtoxics.org/TyroneHayes/>

SPEAKERS

Shirin Ghaffary

Tyrone Hayes Convocation
University of California Berkeley
Integrative Biology

Elizabeth Reis
University of Oregon
Women and Gender Studies

COSPONSORS

Environmental Studies Program
Oregon Humanities Center
Hill Fund
Beyond Toxics
Environmental Science Institute
Institute of Ecology and Evolution
Center for the Study of Women and Society
Department of Biology
Department of Chemistry
Department of Philosophy
Coalition Against Environmental Racism
Environmental Humanities R.I.G.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON